Closed School Guide for Students

Unfortunately schools, like other businesses, do not always have the resources to continue their operations and must close. Although this is a frustrating experience, we hope that it will not discourage you from continuing your education. We have prepared this guide to help you sort out some of your options and help you take steps to continue your education. The U.S. Department of Education, Accrediting Bodies, State Licensing Agencies, and Guarantee Agencies may assist you with various aspects of the process. The roles and responsibilities of each agency and contact points are listed at the end of this document.

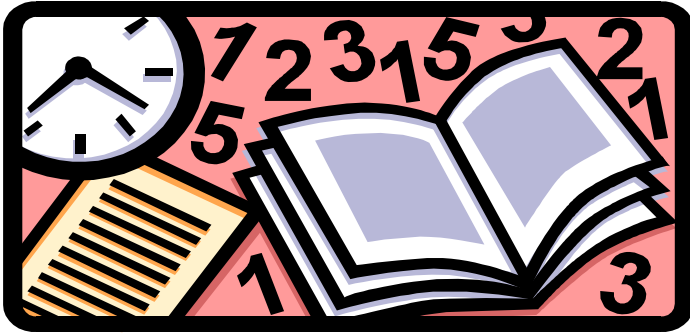

First Steps

It is important that you obtain your academic and financial records as soon as possible. How to do this is discussed later in the brochure. Since your school has closed, your ability to access these records from the school may be short lived. These records will be needed if you plan to transfer into another program of study as they will help your new school determine what Federal student aid you have received and coursework you have successfully completed. This information will then help the school determine how many credits may transfer into your new program of study and how much student aid you may qualify for the remainder of the school year.

On to Completing Your Education...

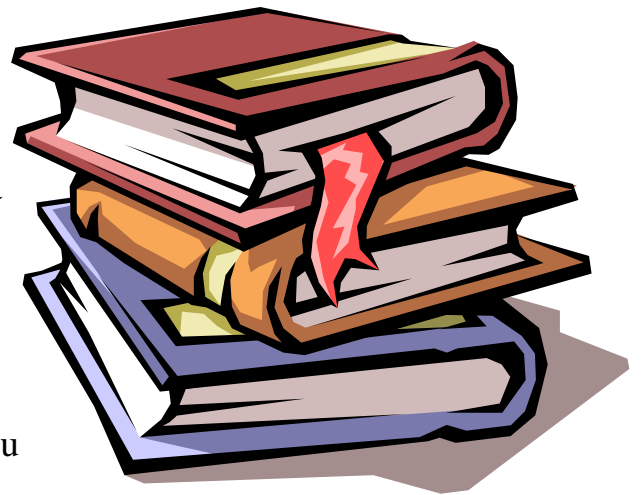

To Transfer or Participate in a Teach-Out

These are two terms that may arise if you continue your educational program and you are able to use some or all of your academic credit toward the completion of your educational program.

A teach-out is a situation where another school offers to allow you to complete a similar or identical program of study for which you should not incur additional costs other than those you would have paid had you been able to complete your program at the school that closed.

To transfer is a situation where you use the academic credits or clock hours you earned at the school that closed toward the completion of a similar or different program of study at another school. You may incur additional costs when you transfer to cover any additional charges necessary to pay for the credits or clock hours you need to complete your program of study. You will need to check with the school at which you wish to transfer to find out if some or all of the credits you earned at the closed school are transferable.

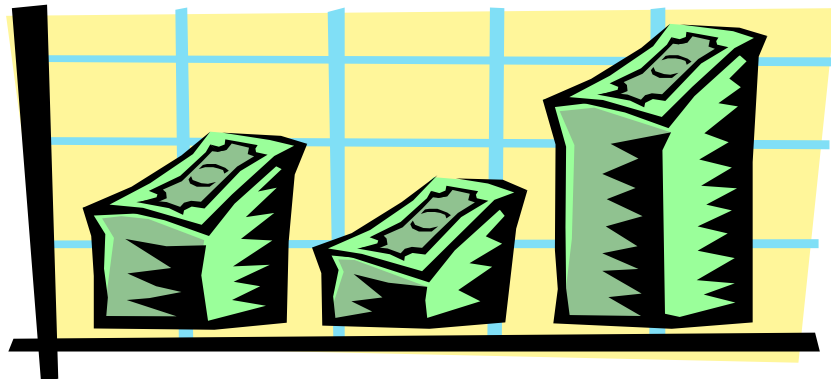

Finding a Teach-out or Transfer Program

You should contact the State licensing agency in your state that oversees postsecondary schools for information as to whether there are any schools in your area that will allow you to complete your education through a teach-out or by transferring. (See the attached list for State licensing agencies.)

Financing

If you received Federal student aid at a school that closed, and you are considering a teach-out or transferring to another school, you may be eligible for Federal student aid. This will depend on your need, the cost of attending the new school, and how much Federal student aid has already been disbursed to you. The last item is probably the most critical here as there are limits on how much Federal student aid you can receive in an academic year. The financial aid office at your new school will be able to help you determine how much you have already received and for how much money you will qualify. You may find out how much Federal student aid you received by contacting the sources below.

Financial Aid Disbursements

You may have received student financial aid from many different sources such as the Federal government, State government, or private lending institutions. The amount of aid received from these sources may affect your ability to receive future financial aid.

Federal Aid – Department of Education

You may find out how much Federal student aid you received from the U.S. Department of Education (such as Pell Grants, Stafford Loans, PLUS Loans, Perkins Loans), by visiting the Department's website <http://www.nslds.ed.gov>. This will link you to the Department's website to access your personal data. To access this data, you will need to enter a personal identification number (PIN). The PIN serves as your identifier and lets you access your personal information. You should not share your PIN with anyone.

PIN numbers were mailed previously to all Federal student aid applicants, however, if you are unable to locate yours, you may apply for one at <http://PIN.ed.gov>. If you need technical assistance accessing this website, please contact Customer Service at 1-800-4FED-AID (433-3243). They are available Monday-Friday, 7:00AM – 10:00PM central time. Once the Department receives your PIN request, you will receive it in the mail (or email) in about 14 days. When using your PIN, be sure to type it exactly as it appears on the correspondence you receive from the Department of Education.

Federal Aid – Other Agencies

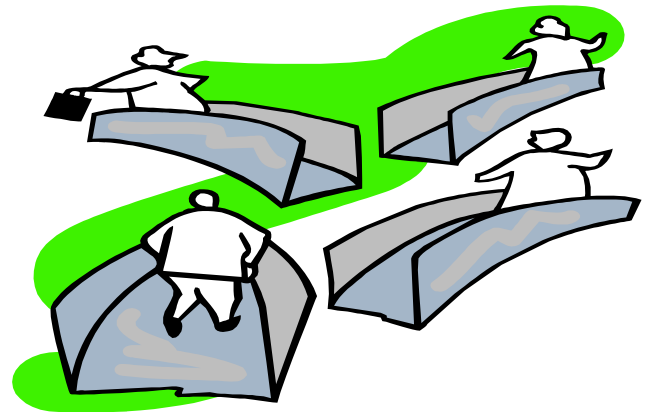

If you have received Financial aid from other Federal Government agencies such as the Department of Veteran’s Affairs or the Department of Health and Human Services, you should contact those agencies directly. You may contact the Department of Veteran’s Affairs at 1-888-442-4551 or <http://www.gibill.va.gov/education/benefits.htm>. You may contact the Department of Health and Human Services at (301) 443-4776 or <http://bhpr.hrsa.gov/dsa/pages/programs.htm>.

Student Aid from Non-Federal Sources

If you have received student financial aid from other sources, such as your State or from a private lending source, you will need to contact those sources directly to determine what monies were disbursed to you. This link will lead you to US State sources that provide financial aid to students:

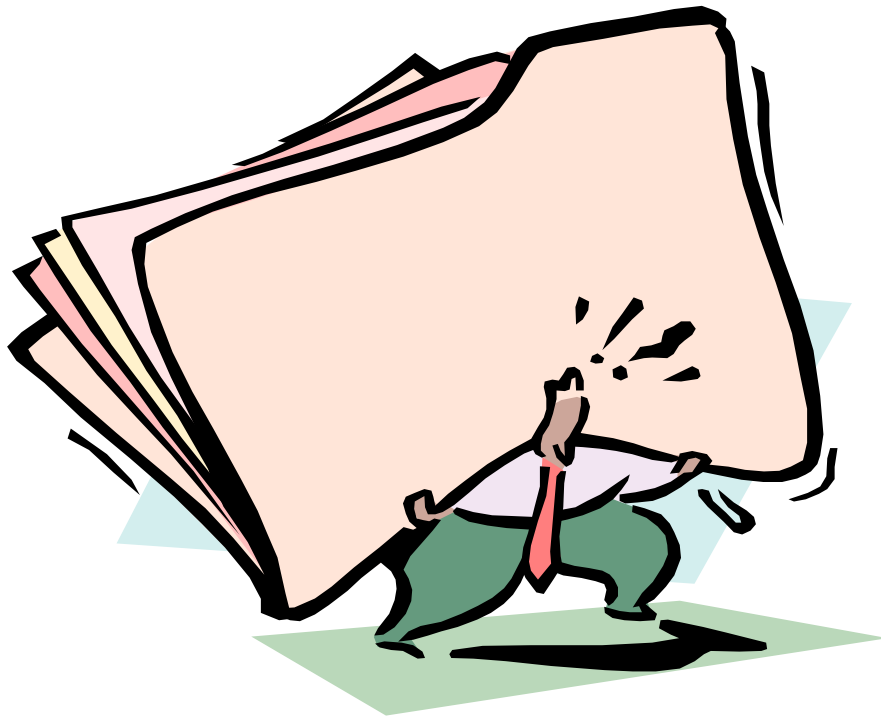

<http://www.finaid.org/otheraid/state.phtml>.

Academic Records

Locating Your Academic Records

If you were not able to obtain your academic records prior to your school closing, or immediately thereafter, you should contact the State licensing agency in the State in which the school was located for assistance in obtaining your records. (See the attached list for applicable state licensing agencies.) Some of these agencies take possession of student records as a matter of State law or policy when schools in their states close. Other agencies may make arrangements for storage of the student records.

Remedies

Loan Discharge

If you are unable to complete your education because you attended a school that closed, and did not accept a teach-out or transfer to another school, you may be eligible for a discharge of your loan if you have a Federal Stafford, PLUS, or Perkins Loan.

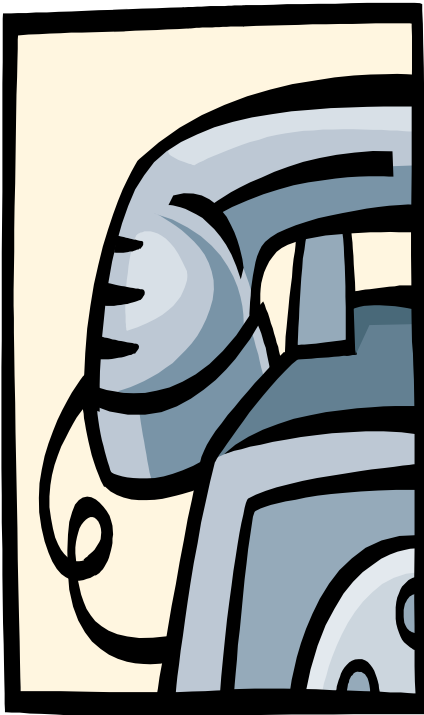

Loan discharges are not automatic with the closure of a school. You must send an application for loan discharge to the holder of your loan to have your loan discharged.

- You are eligible for a closed school loan discharge if you received your loan on or after January 1, 1986 and you (or the student for whom a parent
- were on an approved leave of absence the day the school closed, or
- withdrew from the school not more than 90 days before school closed, and
- you did not complete and are not now in the process of completing, this or a comparable program of study at another school by transferring academic credits or hours earned at the closed school to another school, or by any other means.

Discharge of Federal Stafford, PLUS or Direct loans

When a school closes, a closed school loan discharge application is sent to each Federal Stafford or PLUS loan borrower on record as attending (or in the case of a PLUS loan the student on whose behalf the parent borrowed) the school when it closed. If you do not receive an application in the mail you may contact the holder directly for this application. You may also obtain a loan discharge application on-line at:

www.ed.gov/offices/OSFAP/Students/closedschool/index.html or www.ed.gov/offices/SFAP/DCS/cancel/home.html.

Discharge of Perkins Loans

You will need to submit a closed school loan discharge application to the Debt Collection Service (DCS) office within the U.S. Department of Education. Once a school closes, its Perkins loan portfolio will be assigned to DCS. If your school no longer has personnel available to answer questions you have concerning your Perkins loan, you should contact DCS at the following number 800-4FED-AID (433-3243).

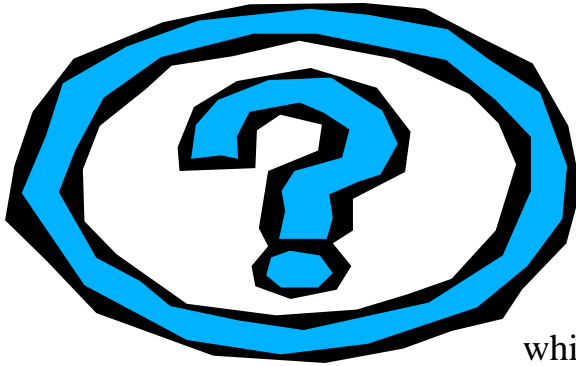

Discharge of Non-Federal Loans

You would need to contact the holders of your loans to inquire about what relief may be available to you concerning these loans. You may contact the State licensing agency to inquire about whether a tuition recovery fund or performance bond was made available for students to submit claims against to cover any losses they incurred by borrowing to attend the school that closed.

Impact of Loan Discharge on Future Borrowing

Once your application has been approved for discharge, the discharged loan balance will be removed from your account. Consequently, your annual and aggregate Federal borrowing limits will not include the discharged loan(s).

FAQ's Regarding Federal Loan Discharge

Q: Should I make payments on my loan while my discharge application is pending?

A: A borrower generally does not need to start making payments on his or her loan until 6 months after the borrower is no longer enrolled at least half-time in school. If the holder of your loan begins to attempt to collect on the loan(s) you borrowed to attend the school that closed, please contact the holder immediately so that you do not become delinquent or default on your loans.

Q: What if I am not eligible for loan discharge?

A: If you attended a school that closed but do not meet the conditions outlined above for loan discharge, or if you borrowed a loan that is not eligible for loan discharge, you are obligated to pay the remaining balance of the loan. If you do not work with the holder of the loan to stay in good standing with respect to your loan obligations, your credit rating may be adversely affected and you may be subject to additional financial penalties such as collection fees, legal fees and court costs. You should contact the holder of your loan and work with them to arrange reasonable and affordable payments.

Q: Do I have appeal rights in my loan is not discharged?

A: There is no appeal process if your application is denied for a closed school discharge.

For Further Information

For further information and resources on closed school loan discharges please visit the following web-site:

www.ed.gov/offices/OSFAP/Students/closedschool/index.html

Also, if you borrowed a Direct Loan you may wish to visit the following site for further information www.directloan.ed.gov .

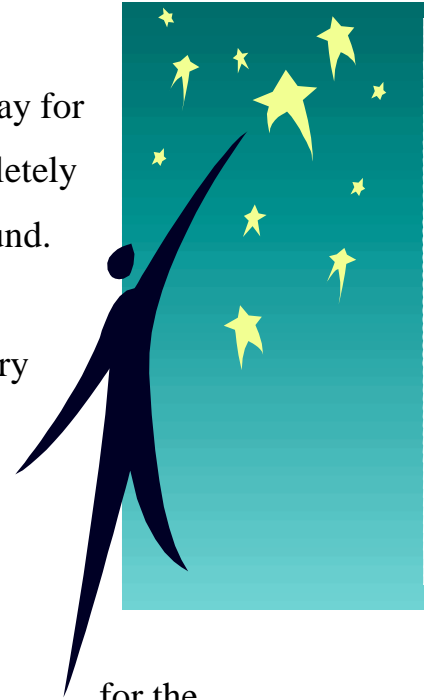

When a School Files for Bankruptcy

When a school files for bankruptcy, its assets are placed in control of the bankruptcy court. In order to make any claim to against the school for any money it owes you, you will need to file a petition for your loss with the bankruptcy court. You may also consult an attorney about any other options you may have through the court system to redeem any losses.

Tuition Recovery

If you made cash payments or borrowed private loans to pay for tuition at the closing institution, those funds may be completely or partly recoverable if your State has a tuition recovery fund. You should contact the appropriate State agency on the attachment to inquire about whether it has a tuition recovery fund.

U.S. Department of Education

The United States Department of Education is responsible for the oversight of the Federal Student Assistance Programs. These programs include the Federal Pell Grant, Federal Stafford Loan, Federal PLUS, Federal Direct Loan, Federal Perkins Loan, Federal SEOG, and Federal Work-Study Programs. The Department of Education's responsibilities include monitoring the expenditure of funds under these programs.

Accrediting Bodies

The accrediting agency is responsible for ensuring that a school is operating in compliance with the agency's standards, policies, and procedures for educational quality. Routinely, the agency will work with the school to continue to provide its accreditation during a teach-out. However, when a school closes, it loses accreditation and is no longer a subject school of the accrediting body. The agency will usually respond to inquiries about the school after it closes; however, it is not responsible for the actions after closure since the school is no longer present to respond to allegations that are lodged against it. Students may call the school's accrediting agency for further information about its accrediting standards, policies, and procedures.

State Licensing Agencies

The State licensing agencies are responsible for ensuring that a school meets the conditions for licensure in its state. The State licensing agencies may be able to assist you with obtaining your academic transcripts, financial records, locating a school for teach-out or transfer, or issues related to tuition recovery.

Guarantee Agencies

The guarantee agencies are either non-profit or governmental organizations that oversee the Federal Stafford loan and Federal PLUS loans in their area of jurisdiction. Their responsibilities include guaranteeing Federal Stafford and PLUS loans and overseeing the schools that participate in their loan guarantee program.
